Beasens Man's Prayra-Marrina.—A former resident of this city, now paying a visit to his old home, congratulated those present on the material prosperity of Cincinnati, but said he regretted that the progress of religion had not been equal to that of the population, and he arged more zeal in behalf of Christianity.

Rev. Mr. Hether informed those present that he had received a letter from Ireland, asking the prayers of this meeting in behalf of the revival in that place; and another which gave glowing accounts of the rapid spread of the gospel among those who have hitherto been dear to its teachings.

To the Primitive Methodist connection

To the Primitive Methodist connection 5,590 persons had been added, and 2,000 remained on trial. To the Wesleyan body, 3,000 had been added, and about 1,500 remained on trial. In conclusion, the speaker mained on trial. In conclusion, the speaker carnestly enforced the necessity of praying, not only for the revival at a distance, but especially that the Lord would pour his spirit upon the people of this country, "Beginning at Jerusalem."

Several persons spoke in reference to this matter, and among others one who had himself been one of the converts in Ireland, and another whose parents were still laboring under the delusion that silvation could alone be found in the Roman hierarchy.

NO MORE REVIVALS TO BE PRAYED FOR.

No More Revivals to be Prayed For,—Prayer having been requested in the Business Men's Prayer-meeting yesterday for the Irish Revival, the prayer-meeting reporter of the Times, who professes to be alarmed for the condition of the editors of this paper since we have begun the publishing of better reports than his, takes occasion to snub the meeting and the request, as follows:
"Great revivals have ever commenced without any special effort on the part of man. This can truly be said in reference to the revival of 1857. It is well known, also, that the great revival in New England, which took place in 1740, was altogether commenced by the direct influence of the Holy Spirit. No human appliances were of importance. To the revival in Ireland, also, the same remarks will apply with equal force. What implety, therefore, for men to say "We will get Up a revival."

It is well known that most of the prayers in those meetings are for revivals, either

It is well known that most of the prayers in those meetings are for revivals, either general, or local, or individual. It indicates considerable assurance in a young disciple to announce to these meetings, without a particle of Scripture evidence, reason or argument, that their appliances are of no importance, that no special effort ever commenced a great revival, (Query, did it a small one?) and that it is impious for men to sappose that by their labor and prayers they can get up a revival. (Is it any more impious to undertake to get up a great revival by the proper means, than to undertake to assist it after God has commenced it?) Would it not appear more modest in this youthful Shimei, if he should tarry at Jericho until he has learned a little of experimental religion, before he casts of experimental religion, before he casts stones at men who have prayed for revivals, and have seen the answers to their prayers,

The Council were asked to permit the Gas Company to extend their pipes on East Pearl-street, from Butler eastwardly, 520 feet, and to subtract the distance from the 4,000 feet to be laid in 1861. A communication was received from cer-

A communication was received from certain owners of property on Providence-street from Wade to Liberty, asking that that street be not repayed with bowlders at the present time. They state that the improvement would benefit nobody, as there is very little travel on the street, and promise, that if the paying is not done, to keep the street in good repair. The petition, however, could not be entertained, as the work was contracted for, and the contractor had already commenced his labors.

The bids for constructing sewers on Vine, Walnut and Sycamore-streets were opened.

DEN OF THEINES SUMMARILY BROKEN UP,—
A few days since, we noticed that a large quantity of stolen goods had been discovered in the house of a man named Hopkins, who resides in Bromley, two miles below this city, and likewise that both he and his wife had been arrested. It appears that they had long been a source of annoyance in the neighborhood, and now that they were once out of the house, it was determined that they should never return, and consequently twenty-two never return, and consequently twenty-two persons combined together and completely demolished the tenement, in which they resided.

In the meantime Hopkins was examined, and acquitted, it appearing that his wife had been the guilty party, but she had managed to escape to Cincinnati. As soon as he was released Hopkins commenced proceedings against the rioters, who destroyed his house, and all but one have been arrested, and will be tried before Esquire Robertson, of Bromley, to-day.
